

2024 Bursary Application Information Guide

On behalf of the team at Suicide Prevention Australia, thank you for your interest in receiving financial support (a bursary) to attend the National Suicide Prevention Conference 2024 (NSPC) on 30 April to 02 May 2024 in Adelaide.

Suicide Prevention Australia encourages the inclusion of people with a lived/living experience of suicide in discussions and activities about suicide prevention. We understand that there are many barriers that can make it hard for some people to attend the conference and bursary funding helps individuals with a lived/living experience of suicide to participate.

Please note that bursary funding is not available two years in a row. If you received a bursary to attend the 2023 National Suicide Prevention Conference in Canberra, please do not proceed with your application.

A lived/living experience of suicide is having experienced suicidal thoughts, survived a suicide attempt, cared for someone through suicidal crisis, or been bereaved by suicide. We know that many people with a lived experience of suicide also identify as mental health consumers and/or carers.

We understand that the content discussed in these pages may be distressing. If you feel you need support, please contact:

- Lifeline on 13 11 14 (24 hours/7 days), or
- Chat to a crisis supporter via text message on 0477 13 11 14 (6pm – midnight AEDT) or
- Online at www.lifeline.org.au (7pm – midnight AEDT)

Am I ready to attend the conference?

Please think carefully about the potential impact of being among 650+ people, all of whom are talking about suicide in some context, such as researchers, academics, and service providers as well as people who have a lived/living experience of suicide.

For some attendees, the added layer of being away from home and their normal day-to-day routines and support structures sometimes contributes to distress. This can be even more challenging after spending all day in the conference and then returning to a hotel room alone. Connecting with people socially is important.

Eligibility criteria

Provision of bursaries is completely dependent on Suicide Prevention Australia receiving bursary funding from state and territory governments and other sponsors. The conference organisers cannot guarantee the availability of bursary funds for the 2024 conference.

If funding is available, there are usually many more applications for a bursary than there are funds. For this reason, bursary applicants are requested to make an application.

The eligibility criteria includes the following:

- Have a lived/living experience of suicide
- Face financial constraints that prevent you attending NSPC without a bursary
- Not have received a bursary for the 2023 conference
- Be able to attend all three days of the conference (30 April to 02 May 2024)
- Be aged 18 years or older
- Be an Australian resident

When is my application due?

Bursary applications must be received either online or via email no later than 8.00pm AEST (Sydney time) on Friday 8 December 2023.

We will notify you of the outcome of your application via email by Thursday 24 January 2024.

What does a bursary cover?

The bursary is a contribution towards the expenses required to attend the conference. This can include flights, accommodation and/ or registration. However, applicants may not require all three. You will be asked to identify if you need a full or partial bursary in the application.

Up to four nights' accommodation and breakfast will be included. Check-in Monday 29 April, check out Thursday 02 May. Any additional nights will be at your expense.

Meals served during the conference include morning tea, lunch and afternoon tea and the conference dinner on Wednesday 1 May. These are all included in the conference registration fee, which will be paid through the bursary. Bursaries do not cover personal expenses such as costs associated with dry cleaning, room service, pay TV, movie hire, mini-bar, tips or meals that are not included as part of the conference.

Suicide Prevention Australia's travel partner will liaise with you before securing desired flight times and dates. Please note unless an airline changes your flight, your bursary does not cover any expenses occurred due to changing flight times and dates.

What will you ask me?

We will ask questions to help the selection panel understand why you want to attend the conference and what makes it difficult for you to attend without financial support. This means that we need some personal information for the selection panel to review the applications.

Every question is important and will assist bursary funders to ensure equity across different communities of bursary recipients. However, you should only share information that you are comfortable sharing.

We acknowledge that completing this online form can be difficult for some people. The selection panel is judging applications on the content of your answers, not how well you write. You may like to talk with someone in your network to assist you in completing the application.

If your application is successful, Suicide Prevention Australia will contact you via telephone to help you prepare for the conference.

Starting the application

We encourage you to complete your application in one sitting. Some questions require you to write your answers so you may find it easier to do these in a word document first and then paste them into the application form.

Some of the questions we will ask you are below so you may want to prepare your answers in advance.

Why is attending this conference important to you? (100-200 words or less)

What are the financial constraints you face that prevent you attending NSPC without a bursary? (100-200 words or less)

How do you expect to use the learnings in your personal or professional life, or in your community? (100-200 words or less)
